

“The 4th Courageous management grand-prix” Awarded

This time our company, “The 4th courageous management grand-prix” that is sponsored by The Tokyo Chamber of Commerce & Industry is awarded to small and medium-sized enterprises and groups which are challenging courageously (management) To produce new products and service by technology and original skills and original business modality, and will be a target and hope for the companies that will be following and will be purpose to carry out activation for the regional economy and further more to the Japanese economy.

(From the Tokyo Chamber of Commerce & Industry’s homepage)

Our company will not remain only doing consignment processing of electronic components, our company has developed the electronic-components molding machine with our original technology, which will contributed the electronic device to be multifunctional and light-weighted. And for result our company was awarded this grand-prix by obtaining high evaluation for the development.

I think that this is the result for doing always, to continue to challenge for the target in the future and not to remain in the present condition.

Not to be fix in a limited mind, but to have an extended view so things will be carried on by flexible thinking.

Although it is applied also to all of the employees will concerned to strive for business without breaking down this posture from now on.

In the selection stage, there was an opportunity to listen to the stories of the companies which have remarkable progress in each field.

“A challenge to unknown” As a person with this same view, while memorizing sympathy, the comfortable stimulus was received at the same time, and made me ambitious to try for new challenges.

The MEIOH PLASTIC MOLDING CO., LTD. and MEIOUKASEI GROUP will continue to challenge without fearing the problems for a target for more developments.
